

In this issue

Issue 227 Spring 2026

94

Compass

11 Editorial

The editor looks back over fifty years of HALI and beyond to the revival of enthusiasm for rugs

25 Dialogue

Celebrating African art; More dragons; Hajji Baba Club Research Fellowship; LACMA's new David Geffen galleries; Louis XIV carpets at the Met; Historic Flemish tapestries restored

28 Diary

HALI's recommendations for the quarter

31 Calendar

Auctions, exhibitions, fairs and conferences

32 Thread of time

Rachel Meek

A Hawaiian feather cape and a Safavid 'vase' carpet fragment from Iran prompt reflections on unusual blue fibres across time and place

34 Profile

Daniel Shaffer

Peter Pap will present Frank Stella's collection of Navajo blankets and rugs at his gallery in Dublin, New Hampshire

38 Comment

Michael Franses

Depictions of textiles in paintings by Fra Angelico in Florence's Palazzo Strozzi

40 Anatomy of an object

Ella Haig

A religious hanging depicting Krishna's life returns to Assam on temporary loan from the British Museum collection

42 Common thread

Coinciding with the show 'Adorning the Horse' and the Year of the Fire Horse, we present textiles related to horses and mythological equines

Features

46 Pathway to the Sun King

Wolf Burchard et al.

A one-week-only display in Paris of thirty-two Grande Galerie carpets created for Louis XIV was the source of great excitement

58 Cloth that speaks louder than words

Sylvia Houghteling

The artefacts in a Yale University exhibition of Indonesian textiles can convey more than labels

66 Mediation between past and present

Malin Lonnberg

The MAK in Vienna has adopted a new approach to presenting its artworks, including replacing its controversial carpet displays

72 Messages from the past

Peter Wandel

A Copenhagen exhibition of vintage postcards from the Middle East illuminates historical attitudes to 'the Orient'

142

108

147

76
The fabric of our bonds

Alice Christophe
Hawaiian barkcloth and featherwork are the guiding stars of a bold and innovative exhibition at the British Museum

86
X-ray visions

Magali An Berthon
France's first major show of the work of Magdalena Abakanowicz, a crucial figure in fibre art

90
Worthy of merit

Martin Platt
The history and spiritual function in Buddhist traditions of the saziyo textile of Burma

94
Horse power

Sumru Belger Krody
Textiles used to project and enhance the image of the horse tell of humanity's relationship with the most noble of beasts

102
Bright and beautiful

Cosima Stewart
Inside the Tbilisi Silk Museum's unique collection of jajims: colourful, striped flatweaves

108
Continuity surviving conquest

Alexander Brier Marr
18th- to 19th-century textiles from the Andes demonstrate how weavers preserved ancient traditions despite colonial occupation

114
The first global product

A new book chronicles the ongoing quest of Karun Thakar to engage with chintz—as a collector, enthusiast and educator

128
Keeping embroidery on the map

Gillian Vogelsang-Eastwood
The story behind a new book, The Atlas of World Embroidery

134
Power in peace and war

Joe Nickols
Textiles at the British Museum reveal the customs and hierarchies within the samurai of Japan

Reviews

142
Exhibition preview

'Journeys – Global Textiles from the Karun Thakar Collection', National Trust houses, UK

144
Exhibition review

'Falak Sayr: Textiles from the Khyber', The Haveli: Museum of Textiles, Karachi, reviewed by William Dunbar

Marketplace

147
Auction review

A millefleurs tapestry at Sotheby's, reviewed by Stephanie Douglas

148
Auction price guide

International auction results of note

160
Last page

Unicorns: the mythical creatures that have left enduring impressions on art throughout history are at the centre of a current Paris exhibition

